

Chord Changing Exercises

www.BluesGuitarLessonsFree.com

The image displays three rows of guitar chord diagrams, each consisting of four measures. Each measure shows a specific chord with its fingering indicated by 'x' marks on the strings. The first row contains E7, A7, E7, and E7. The second row contains A7, A7, E7, and E7. The third row contains B7, A7, E7, and E7. Each diagram shows the six strings of the guitar with 'x' marks indicating which strings are to be fretted. The rhythm pattern for each measure is represented by a slash (/) on the staff.

Practice this exercise over and over again until you have mastered it. Make sure you are comfortable changing between the chords and have the feel of the right hand rhythm pattern.
